

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Talk about your résumé!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe issues relating to money, in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can exchange complex information about work.
- I can explain how to write a résumé.
- I can talk about facts and courses of action.

Ask your partner:

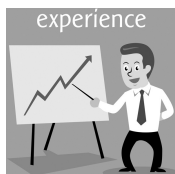

- What are résumés like in your country?
- Are they different from résumés in English-speaking countries? What are the differences?

Let's Explore!

Kristi gives Adam some ideas about writing an effective résumé!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Adam: What's next?

Kristi: What I think we should do next is look at the sections of your résumé. What I don't understand is why you only have your contact information, your experience, and your hobbies.

Adam: I thought this would suffice.

Kristi: Adam, what you want your résumé to be is eye-catching. There are certain sections that employers will expect to see.

Adam: Like what?

Kristi: I'd recommend adding a job objective statement.

Adam: Okay. What do I write about?

Kristi: What employers expect to see is a statement showing the direction you want to go. You can also include your work preferences.

Adam: Can I include skills I bring to the position? I could add some of those action verbs you mentioned.

Kristi: Absolutely. Another section you want to include is your education. In this section, you could add any information regarding your degree. Don't forget to include where and when you graduated.

Adam: Should I include my GPA?

Kristi: Only if it is an asset. If you feel your GPA isn't strong, make sure you put more of your non-academic experience with an emphasis on your strengths and skills.

Adam: Got it.

Kristi: I've also noticed you only listed your formal job experience.

Adam: I know. But those are the places where I gained all my prior experience.

Kristi: What about volunteer experience or unpaid experience? You could have them here as well.

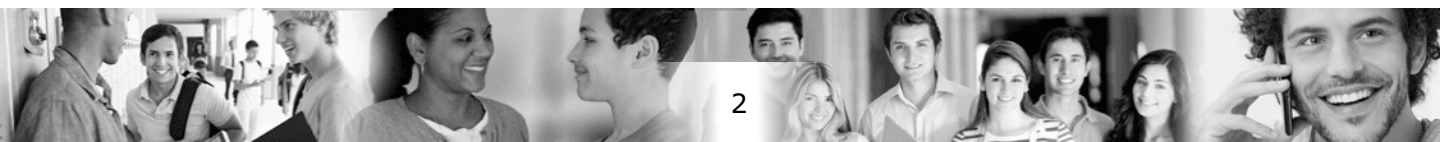

Adam: I volunteered as a content editor for two university publications.

Kristi: Then, what I'd suggest is listing them here. Finally, make sure you include a reference section at the end of your résumé.

Adam: Should I write their names and contact information as well?

Kristi: No, simply indicate that your references are "available upon request". Bear in mind that you should have at least three people who can serve as your references.

Adam: Gotcha! Thanks, Kristi!

Let's Practice!

Kristi explains how to write a resume.

Instructions: Read the sentences and underline all the verbs that describe things you need to do in order to write a résumé.

1. I 'd recommend adding a job objective statement.
2. You can also include your work preferences.
3. You can list skills you bring to the position.
4. You could use some of those action verbs you mentioned.
5. Another section you want to include is your education.
6. In this section, you could add any information regarding your degree.
7. Don't forget to mention where and when you graduated.

Let's Practice!

Kristi talks about specific information to include!

Instructions: Read the dialogue on page 2. Then, read the clues and find the words in the wordsearch below.

Word Bank

1. Look at the different _____ of your resume.
2. I thought this would _____.
3. You want your résumé to be _____.
4. I'd recommend adding a job _____.
5. You can also include your work _____.
6. Those are the places where I gained all my _____ experience.
7. You could have _____ experience here as well.
8. I should include _____ as well.

Y	O	E	W	O	B	P	R	I	O	R	R	B	E	O	R	C	J
Z	B	Z	Y	Q	Y	A	K	H	X	B	D	T	N	V	Y	O	W
W	J	Q	P	B	F	D	S	U	F	F	I	C	E	X	Y	N	I
F	E	S	W	H	X	E	B	L	K	M	I	E	A	O	E	T	B
S	C	E	F	E	F	Y	G	P	W	H	E	H	R	C	I	A	I
H	T	C	E	I	L	E	F	R	U	O	R	J	M	U	T	C	Q
C	I	T	I	E	H	C	L	E	W	M	Q	T	T	V	W	T	F
F	V	I	W	O	E	A	S	F	P	Q	I	J	X	Z	X	I	U
G	E	O	Q	U	S	T	X	E	R	I	J	F	I	S	X	N	W
L	S	N	G	L	H	C	B	R	S	B	T	O	N	H	N	F	Q
R	T	S	E	K	N	H	M	E	H	D	O	Z	A	A	V	O	D
X	A	C	N	D	J	I	X	N	F	A	S	Q	A	C	R	R	K
I	T	B	O	X	L	N	D	C	K	V	Z	V	X	J	M	M	R
J	E	N	Q	K	R	G	G	E	X	J	M	V	Q	M	K	A	S
V	M	Z	U	D	G	F	F	S	L	Z	O	K	B	R	R	T	V
L	E	W	S	S	O	K	F	O	C	A	X	O	P	F	N	I	L
R	N	O	W	U	N	P	A	I	D	L	R	T	Q	U	L	O	D
A	T	K	F	S	F	S	K	H	Z	Z	D	G	E	H	K	N	H

Extension Activity

Research objective statements.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online to this website (50 résumé objective statements) to get some examples of objective statements.
- Read some and discuss which ones you like or would consider using with a friend.
- Write your own objective statements.
- Read them aloud.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I research examples of objective statements.

☐ ☐

I talk about my objective statements with a partner.

☐ ☐

I write my own objective statement.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- section (noun): a part of a document
e.g. We need to look at the sections of your résumé.
- to suffice (verb): to be enough
e.g. I thought this would suffice.
- eye-catching (adjective): attractive and easily noticed e.g. You want your résumé to be eye-catching.
- objective statement (noun): a short statement describing exactly what you want e.g. I'd recommend adding a job objective statement.
- preference (noun): a feeling of liking or wanting something e.g. You can also include your work preferences.
- prior (adjective): happening or done before a particular time e.g. That's where I gained all my prior experience.
- unpaid (noun): getting no money for the work done
e.g. What about volunteer experience or unpaid experience?

Learning Points

What clauses and Long Phrases as Subject

When you use a what, that, or who clause as the subject of a sentence, you have shifted the emphasis away from the words that sit in the subject position.

Look at these examples:

Original Sentence

The type is the first thing we need to choose.

(the emphasis here is on 'type' because it's in the subject position)

Noun Clause Sentence

What we need to choose first is the type.

(the emphasis is now on 'what we need to choose' as it has been moved to the subject position)

So, if you want to place emphasis on the verb, direct object, or another part of the sentence, you use a what-phrase (or sometimes a that-clause).

For example:

He really wanted to emphasize his experience.

becomes

What he really wanted to emphasize was his experience.

This is how we form "What" clauses.

subject / What-phrase	be	complement
What I think we should do next is.	is	look at the sections of your résumé.
What employers expect to see	is	a statement showing the direction you want to go.
What I'd suggest	is	listing them here.

Learning Points

Résumé Sections

Writing a résumé can be a daunting experience, especially if you have never written one. There are certain rules that can be applied when it comes to organizing one. Not all résumés are the same, but here are some important sections that employers in a variety of industries will expect to see.

a. Header

Here you write your name in bold and in a font that is slightly larger than the rest of the résumé.

Make sure you include your contact information (i.e. mailing address, phone number, and e-mail).

b. Objective Statement

Although this is optional, employers expect to see a statement showing the direction you want to go. You can also include your work preferences.

c. Education

Here you add any information regarding your degree. Include where and when you graduated. You may include your GPA if it is strong.

d. Experience

Use either a chronological and combination formats. Make sure you add any relevant experience. For example include jobs, internships, volunteer experiences and coursework.

e. References

Finally, make sure you include a reference section at the end of your résumé. Simply indicate that your references are "available upon request". Bear in mind that you should have at least three people who can serve as your references.

