

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

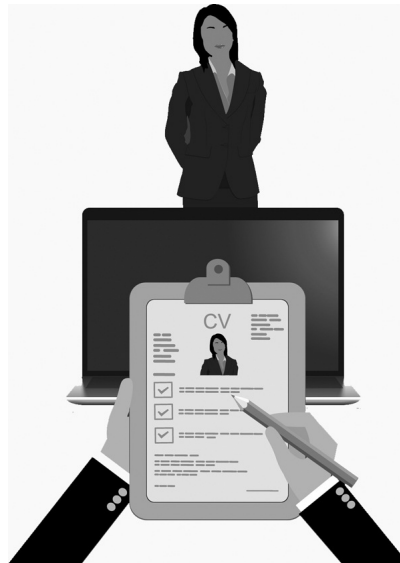

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Adam gets closer to having a successful interview.

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe issues relating to money, in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are the main requirements for a job in your field?
- Do you consider yourself employable? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can exchange complex information about my work.
- I can describe job requirements.
- I can talk about facts and courses of action.

Let's Explore!

Adam considers the hiring process!

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Adam: So, this is a publishing company?

Headhunter: Yes and no. What we are currently working on is a complete digital transformation so as to adapt to the way people access information.

Adam: That sounds bang up-to-date. Are you currently hiring?

Headhunter: As a matter of fact, we are. A flair for the English language along with flawless grammar is needed for this job.

Adam: Are there any other requirements for the position?

Headhunter: A degree in Journalism or Creative Writing is required. A minimum 1 year writing experience is recommended. Ability to multitask and meet tight deadlines is needed. And strong verbal and written communication skills are demanded.

Adam: OK. I seem to have the right educational background and level of experience. How do you go about hiring?

Headhunter: What we normally do is to sort of stack the applications we receive at the fair into three piles: potential candidates, those who are worth a second look, and the "nos".

Adam: So, what headhunters do is basically weed out people who don't have the qualifications, right?

Headhunter: Yes. What we have discovered is that most applications are pathetic. Very few people here are "employee material".

Adam: What you said makes a lot of sense. I'm still working on becoming employable.

Headhunter: Also, this is an entry position. Most experienced candidates are not willing to work for peanuts.

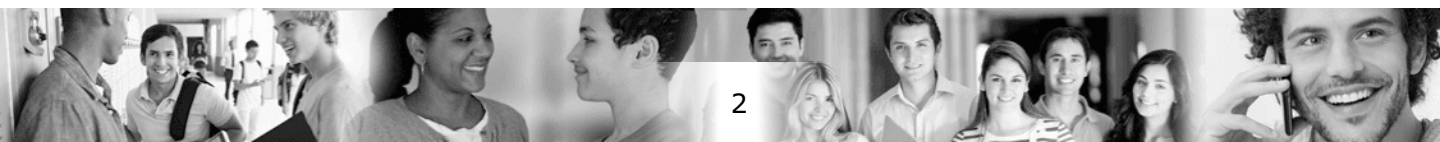

Adam: At this point, what I am really interested in is getting my foot in the door. Do you think I stand a chance?

Headhunter: You stand as good a chance as anyone. I must warn you: applying for the job is suggested if you want the position.

Adam: Great. Can I leave my résumé with you?

Headhunter: Do you have a cover letter as well?

Adam: Well ... I don't have one handy but I'll be right back!

Let's Practice!

Adam wants to be employee material.

Instructions: Use the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences. Use capital letters where necessary. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word Bank

is suggested if / is needed / were sent by potential candidates / is needed for this job / is recommended / is required

1. A degree in Journalism or Creative Writing _____.
2. A minimum 1 year writing experience _____.
3. Applying for the job _____ you want the position.
4. A flair for the English language along with flawless grammar _____.
5. Ability to multi-task and meet tight deadlines _____.
6. Some cover letters _____.

Let's Practice!

Headhunters weed out* people who don't have the right qualifications.

*To "weed out" is to take away something bad or not useful and keep only what is good.

Use the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Word Bank

multitask / get her foot in the door / tight deadlines / multitasking / getting my foot in the door / stand as good a chance / willing to work for peanuts / verbal and written communication skills

1. You _____ as anyone.
2. I am really interested in _____.
3. Most experienced candidates are not _____.
4. The ability to _____ and meet _____ is what we need.
5. Strong _____ are demanded in a publishing company.

Extension Activity

Finding out more about the company!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- You are going to find out more information about a company of your preference.
- Choose a company and do research online.
- Write down important information about the company. For example, what they are looking for, vision and mission, duties and responsibilities etc.
- Write down three to five sentences describing what the company is looking for and how you meet their requirements.
- Read your sentences to your partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I research an company online.

☐
☐

I write information about the company.

☐
☐

I write sentences using What-phrases and passive to describe the company's requirements.

☐
☐

Target Words

- to adapt (verb): to change your ideas so that you can deal with a new situation
e.g. We need to adapt to the way people access information.
- flawless (adjective): without any mistakes
e.g. Flawless grammar is needed for this job.
- tight deadlines (expression): having just enough time to complete something e.g. You need to meet tight deadlines in this job.
- verbal and written communication skills (expression): good speak and writing abilities
e.g. Strong verbal and written communication skills are required for this job.
- to multitask (verb): to do several jobs at the same time
e.g. You need to be able to multi-task.
- stack of applications (noun): a pile of résumé and cover letters e.g. We sort of stack of applications into three piles.
- to work for peanuts (verb): to have a job that pays a very small amount of money
e.g. Most candidates won't work for peanuts.

Learning Points

What Clauses

When you use a what, that, or who clause as the subject of a sentence, you have shifted the emphasis away from the words that sit in the subject position.

Look at these examples:

Original Sentence

It makes a lot of sense.

Noun Clause Sentence

What you said makes a lot of sense.

A "what-phrase" is made up of: what + pronoun + verb phrase

What we are currently working on is a complete digital transformation so as to adapt to the way people access information.

"What-phrases" are often used to:

- introduce a new topic
- give reasons, instructions, or explanations
- correct something that has been said or done.

Examples:

- What headhunters do is basically weed out people who don't have the qualifications.
- What we have discovered is that most applications are pathetic.
- What I am really interested in is getting my foot in the door.

Learning Points

The Passive Voice

In English, all sentences are in either "active" or "passive" voice.

The active voice focuses on the thing which is doing the action (i.e. the subject of the sentence) and the thing receiving the action (i.e. the object). Most sentences in English are in the active voice.

- If you want the job, I suggest applying for it.

We use the passive when the 'doer' (agent) of the action is not so important. We are not interested in knowing who did the action. Our attention is on the object.

- Applying for the job is suggested if you want the position.

Here's some more information about the passive of modal verbs.

1. The Passive is formed by [thing receiving the action] + be + past participle + (by) + (thing doing the action)
2. The passive can be used when the "doer" is unknown, irrelevant, or you want to be vague about who is responsible for the action.
3. You can also use the passive to talk about a general truth.

Examples:

- A degree in Journalism or Creative writing is required.
- A minimum 1 year writing experience is recommended.
- Ability to multi-task and meet tight deadlines is needed.
- And strong verbal and written communication skills is demanded.
- A flair for the English language along with flawless grammar is needed for this job.

